Instrument E – Meeting facilitation explanation:

The objective is to have some men dedicated to planning and executing the logistics of stated presbytery meetings so there is reliability, consistency, ease of travel, and reasonable thrift for the treasury. A second objective is to free the stated clerk of the logistical burdens of coordinating lodging and facilities.

This committee's work would be purely logistical. The presbytery as a whole would still determine the locations of future meetings and the clerk would coordinate the dockets and orders of the day. The committee would assure that the presbytery has consistent meeting facilitation, provide a central contact, and take a burden off the clerk who presently gets involved in room assignments and other small details.

The committee would work with churches at or near the stated meeting site ahead of time to see how much they want to be involved in supporting the meeting. That may include anything from providing the meeting place in their church or another related facility, recommending hotels or conference rooms, fully or partially catering meals and breaks, or offering lodging in homes for presbyters that want to do that. The committee would compile a procedural guidebook to be edited and passed on to succeeding chairmen. The guidebook might include checklists and timelines, facilities used in the past with critiques, contacts for facilities and churches, and other useful information. The committee would also submit a report to presbytery after each meeting with cost and details that might help future planning. This increasing consistency should help with saving the presbytery money. The committee should probably have oversight of the stated meetings portion of the annual budget. The committee would also be expected to submit a budget each year for approval.

The chairman would work with the Treasurer to coordinate payments and advances for reservations and other expenditures. Likewise, the chairman would coordinate communications and special logistical needs with the stated clerk as the meeting docket is developed. Attendance, room assignments, special room arrangements, special travel needs, and the like would all be directed to the Meeting Facilitation Committee, instead of to the stated clerk.

To start the committee there could be two men elected, one for a one-year term as chairman and a second as a two-year term. The two year term man would assist the first year, then be the chairman the second. In the second year there would have a new man elected as assistant.
